

PayPal accounts for sale

By Nick Sommerlad on October 5, 2011 12:16 PM | No Comments

Top cybercrime investigator Brian Krebs has found PayPal accounts on sale for as little as 50c (32p) a pop.

Verified accounts, which have been linked by PayPal to bank accounts, start at $2.50 (£1.62) each and come with access to the customer's email account via username and password.

Everything crooks need, basically, to steal stuff over PayPal and delete the emails that could warn the victim.

This amount of information, reckons Brian, suggests it came from viruses installed on the victim's computer.

Time to check your anti-virus is up to date? If not, perhaps a new password or two?